

I am writing to express my unhappiness with the proposed restrictions on digital radio and video technology. I believe that it is far too restrictive to peoples freedom to experiment, use and develop new technology.

I am not aware of any other situation where the american public could be prosecuted merely for owning or building a device and or software that will not endanger anyone else.

I urge you to reconsider the DRM Please note that I have no objection to the prosecution of people who upload or download music or video where the rights to that product are owned by someone else. I just believe that it is unnecessary to restrict everyones freedoms because of a few unethical people. And there are numerous demonstrable situations where people can and do develop similar useful technology that does not involve unethical use.
